Keeping track of opportunities

The image shows a screenshot of the National Science Foundation (NSF) website. The main page is titled "National Science Foundation WHERE DISCOVERIES BEGIN". A search bar is visible in the top right corner. The navigation menu includes links for HOME, FUNDING, AWARDS, DISCOVERIES, NEWS, PUBLICATIONS, STATISTICS, ABOUT NSF, and FASTLANE. The "Funding" section is highlighted, and the "Find Funding" page is displayed. A red circle highlights the text "Get NSF funding information by" followed by icons for email, RSS, and RSS. A blue arrow points from this text to a pop-up window titled "National Science Foundation Update - Internet Explorer". The pop-up window shows the NSF logo and the text "Email Updates". Below this, it says "To sign up for updates or to access your subscriber preferences, please enter your contact information below." There is a field for "*Email Address" and buttons for "Submit" and "Cancel". At the bottom of the pop-up, it states "Your contact information is used to deliver requested updates or to access your subscriber preferences." and provides links for "Privacy Policy" and "Help".
